

Workshop: NASPO Certification

The North American Security Products Organization, NASPO, is a non-profit organization that was founded in 2002, and accredited by ANSI in 2004 as an American National Standards Development Organization (SDO). Certification of compliance to ANSI/NASPO-SA 2008 is used by organizations, both inside and outside of the U.S. to demonstrate that they meet the security assurance standard specified by several procurement entities.

Objectives of the Workshop

Attendees should expect to learn the nuances of NASPO certification and how it can play a critical role for business success.

Specific objectives are:

- To provide attendees with an overview of the requirements of the ANSI/NASPO Standard
- To acquaint attendees with a business justification to pursue NASPO certification
- To provide attendees with knowledge of the certification process, procedures, and the challenges that may arise
- To enable attendees to interpret the difference between Class I, Class II, and Class III certification of compliance

Audience

This workshop is aimed at Security Managers of companies who are interested in being NASPO certified.
